City To Buy Tractor And Grader for Streets

Turning farmers for a night, on the qualifications of their own machines. William Torras, requested the council to give him permission to cut down a tree in front of his garage at Camino Del Monte and Fourth avenue. It was pointed out, that the tree was a live one and action on Torras' petition was deferred to an investigation by Mayor Heron and Councilman Jordan.

All bids were left unopened until a special meeting of the council Monday morning at 11 o'clock, when a decision on buying a tractor and a grader will be made. The graders run in the neighborhood of $1,000 while the tractor will cost around $2,000.

The purchase of the tractor and the grader is being made to continue the improvement of the streets during the winter weather. The present tractor and grader is in need of immediate repairs and has been in use for about five years.

The council meeting lasted a little more than an hour and was devoted almost exclusively to the discussion of the merits of the various tractors and graders. Representatives of the different companies gave five-minute talks relative.

Local Churches Plan Thanksgiving Services

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

The usual Thanksgiving service of the Christian Science Churches consisting of readings from the Bible and the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scripture, by Mary Baker Eddy, and testimonials of thanksgiving and gratitude from the congregation, will be held in First Church of Christ Scientist of Carmel in the Monte Verde Church edifice, near Sixth, at 11 o'clock Thanksgiving morning. The public is cordially welcome.

COMMUNITY CHURCH

Apropos of the season, Carmel Community Church invites all to a Thanksgiving Festival Service on Sunday morning next. Particular emphasis will be placed on the spiritual significance of Thanksgiving Day; music and sermon will all conform to this ideal. A beautiful and unusual ritual for the reception of members will have a place in this service. The Community Church is the church of the people. It is also the church of the evening of December 7th when "Great Scenes from Wagner's 'Valkyrie'" will be presented.

ALL SAINTS CHURCH

Thanksgiving Day service will be held in All Saints Church Thursday morning at 10:30. A Harvest Festival service with a sermon by Rev. T. Harold Grimeshaw of the Community Church will be featured.

WOMANS CLUB WILL HEAR TALK ON MEXICO

"Rediscovery of Mexico, the Land of Surprises," is the subject of a talk to be given by Lincoln Wirt for the Carmel Woman's Club Forum, at 8:15, Saturday, Nov. 22nd, in the Girl Scout House, corner of Lincoln and 6th streets.

Lincoln Wirt who was at one time U. S. Director of Education in Alaska, and later International Commissioner for the Near East Relief, spent the summer of 1929 in Mexico as a member of the Seminar, a party of some ninety educators, writers and publicists who went from the United States to study Mexico under the auspices of the Committee on Cultural Relations with Latin America.

They met almost at once many of the leading citizens of Mexico, Cabinet ministers, University professors, writers, artists, professional men, and women of culture—people purely Mexican. They had interviews with Gerardo Murillo, noted Mexican poet-painter, with Portes-Gil, with Mr. Morrow. They visited the schools, Agricultural Schools, Trade Schools, Indian Schools, Normal Schools, and especially the Rural Schools. They heard the plans of Enrique Aguirre, Director of Physical Education for the Federal District, a University of California man, and of Dr. Moises Saenz, Sub-secretary of Education, a graduate of Columbia. They were impressed with the signs of intellectual awakening everywhere in Mexico.

It is this awakened Mexico of today about which Mr. Wirt will talk. The is invited.

RACCOON LEAVES NELSON'S HOME

They say that raccoons are almost human in getting out of houses, but how true this is, "Snap" Nelson never realized until he got one for a pet last week.

On Sunday the Nelsons went to Redwood City. When they came back, the raccoon had disappeared. Sometime during the day it had opened one of the rear kitchen windows and after raiding the pantry it disappeared.

SERVICES HELD FOR MRS. HICKS

Mrs. Florence Hicks wife of Ralph W. Hicks passed away last Sunday morning at the family home on Mission street in Carmel. She is survived by her husband, two daughters, Mrs. Eleanor Mullinx of Auburn and Mrs. Helen Schweninger of Carmel, and a married son, Waldo Hicks, who with his wife is also a resident of this city.

Mrs. Hicks was a prominent member of the Monterey Chapter of the Neighbors of Woodcraft, under whose auspices the funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon following which the remains were cremated in Oakland. Mrs. Hicks was long noted for her practical and kindly interest in those who were in need or distress. Her numerous Carmel friends will deeply mourn her passing.

DEATH SUMMONS MRS. E. A. BARBER

Mrs. Edward Altee Barber of Hatton Fields died Wednesday at the Monterey Peninsula hospital. She has been a resident of Carmel for many years and was the mother of Mrs. Mathiot.

school orchestra played two selections. "Song Without Words" by Tschaikowsky and Mrs. O. W. Bardarson of the lery, are attracting an unusual amount of favorable attention among the artists because of their extraordinary virility and freedom of expression. Young Brede, who is a pupil of Amy D. Fleming, has not only an exceptional gift for character expression, but a maturity of technique which at times attains almost unbelievable sophistication.

The exhibit of the three boys will be on until December 1. The works of Brede are those seen in the San Francisco exhibit, most of them done when he was thirteen years old.

For Book Week many of the classes have been writing book reviews, the best of which will be entered in the Contest this week. The Room Mothers have arranged a lovely display of books in each class room. Most of the books will help with the class project work.

—Maire DeAmaral.

All boys interested are urged to come out and learn basketball. Right after Thanksgiving Mr. Bardarson will coach the senior team, and Mr. Lanyon will take care of the juniors. There will also be a lightweight basketball team to play with other teams on the peninsula.

—Joe DeAmaral

The Pre-School children aged from two to four are invited to meet every Tuesday from 3 to 5 in the first grade room in the Sunset School. The kindergarten teacher will help with the music and games. Call Mrs. F. F. Murphy for further information as she is chairman of this section of the P. T. A.

P. T. A. FOOD SALE

The Parent Teacher Association is conducting a food sale on Saturday, November twenty-second, at Vining's Meat Market, the sale opening at nine o'clock in the morning and continuing as long as the food lasts. Among the dishes on the sale list are home cooked pies, cakes, cranberry jelly, beans, bread, salads and meat loaf.

IN EXHIBIT HERE

Child prodigies are accepted, but perhaps never have they been so frequent as today. It is interesting that the current exhibition at the Denny-Watrous Gallery is one of three boys, eleven, fourteen, and fifteen years old.

Arthur Wilson, Otto Brede, and Harry Lee are their names, all San Francisco school boys who have shown such decided talent in their school work that they have been sent to Amy Dewing Fleming for private instruction. Otto Brede, now fourteen, has already had considerable press comment because of his show at the Paul Elder Gallery last March.

Junius Cravens' comment in the Argonaut is of interest: "The drawings and paintings by the thirteen-year-old school boy,

RANGER FORCED DOWN BY STORM

The Storys, Mary and Arthur, were driven down by the recent storm from Chew's Ridge where, as Lookouts, they have been on watch all summer, doing their best to save their country from the ravage of forest and brush fires.

From the viewpoint of lookouts, the season has been most successful. Fires have been few and these kept quite small. "Keep 'em small!" is the lookout's watchword.

It's healthy on the top. They feel very fit. Mrs. Story, who underwent a serious operation last February, finds herself much stronger than when they went up to the station on June 4th.

The Storys are looking forward to their third winter in Carmel; they will occupy Mrs. Riegg's cottage on North Lincoln.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE
CHURCHES

"Soul and Body," will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon will include the following from the Bible: "And what agreement hath the temple of God with idols? for ye are the temple of the living God; as God hath said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and I will be their God, and they shall be my people. are several blocks apart. "Therefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you, And will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty" (II Cor. 6:16-18).

The Lesson-Sermon also will include the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Because of human ignorance of the divine Principle, Love, the Father of all is represented as a corporeal creator; hence men recognize themselves as merely physical, and are ignorant of man as God's image or reflection and of man's eternal incorporeal existence" (p. 13).

CATOR'S DAUGHTER INJURED IN CRASH

Barian Cator, 15-year-old daughter of Thomas Vincent Cator, Carmel's distinguished composer, is recovering this week from injuries suffered when the glider she was flying crashed in a nose dive at the San Jose airport.

The accident occurred last week while Miss Cator was taking lessons in flying a glider. She went up alone and was up about 40 feet in the air when the glider suddenly took a nose dive and crashed on the ground.

Miss Cator suffered a fracture in a vertebra and must remain in the hospital for several months. According to her father, while her condition is still serious, physicians attending her are hopeful that she will completely recover.

Miss Cator has been an aviation enthusiast for many years and has already qualified in piloting an airplane. Recently she became interested in glider flying and took lessons at the San Jose Airport. She had taken about five hours of instruction when the accident occurred.

CARMEL GIRL SCOUTS

The troop membership in the Girl Scouts has more than doubled in the last three weeks, which is greatly encouraging to all those interested in the development of the movement here. The new members are taking their Tenderfoot tests, while the older members are divided into groups who are studying Nature, with the help of Mrs. Van Ess, or working for their Health Winner Badge under the guidance of Miss Joyce Campion. The Nature hunters have been to the beach to study shells and seaweeds, and are going to learn about the trees common to the peninsula.

The Health winning group keeps records, each for herself for three months. She must show improvement in posture, take regular daily exercise, walking a mile each day, setting up exercises twenty minutes night and morning. She must report an adequate amount of rest, which means early to bed—no midweek parties or movies—, she must not eat between meals, must have a daily tub, and energy and perseverance with the tooth brush. She must wear sensible low-heeled shoes and loose simple clothes. Although none of these things is hard to do for a little time it requires real self-discipline to keep up this daily program for three months. By the end of that time she has formed some excellent health habits that will stay with her always.

Girl Scouts learn Service and practice it in the home, their mothers' homes and their own Girl Scout "Little House," which they keep in apple pie order for the use of the Woman's Club on certain mornings and afternoons and occasional evenings. Dusting, sweeping, dry mopping, carrying in the winter's supply of wood, laying the fire, cleaning the kitchen, all fall to the turn of every girl once a month as House Committee duties rotate.

A group of older young women interested in helping with the Scouts has been formed into a Scout Leaders' Training Class. This class is under the direction of Miss Betty Phillips, the Scout Captain, and meets at the Scout House every Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock. Any who are interested are invited to join and help.

The Scouts are observing Book Week. Miss Berry has lent them for the week a collection of especial interest to girls of Scout age and the Scout Council has offered a

Oddly Enough...

Milton Latham, of the Carmelita Inn and also a well known architect, drew the plans for the San Francisco city hall that won second place and a prize of $1,000.

The new zoning ordinance for Carmel Point and the Highlands defines a family thus: "One person living alone or more persons living together, whether related to each other or not!"

John Hall, who operates the Mission Bell service station on San Carlos street, was a sergeant in the Pennsylvania police department. He came to Carmel for a vacation and never went back.

The La Playa hotel was for many years known as the "chocolate house." It was originally the home of Artist Chris Jorgensen, who married into the Ghirardelli family.

The first printing office in Carmel was established in October, 1914. W. L. Overstreet was its founder. Later he established the Pine Cone.

John Catlin, the "village blacksmith," was a prominent attorney in San Francisco. He also came to Carmel on a visit, gave one look around and next week his office was vacant.

The first piano, or at least the first Steinway to be brought to Carmel, is in the home now owned by Miss Jessie Hunkins on Camino Real and Ocean avenue.

The streets of Carmel were laid out and named by a civil engineer by the name of Duckworth. He is still active.

Margaret Nelson, wife of "Snap" Nelson otherwise known as Lee Sage, was a protege of Edwin Markham. Her poetry has appeared in all of the leading magazines.

OCEAN AVENUE

FOR RUBES FROM NEW YORK

by Hal Garrott

"Step right this way, Mr. Garrott," said the pretty superintendent dressed all in white. She led me through the cozy reception room and down immaculate hallways. I passed Burgdorff's joyous canvasses, Jo Mora's plaque, caught glimpses of sea, mountains, and pines through French doors—but their beauty was not for me. Someone had called me middle-aged, and the family physician had insisted on my having a physical examination. "You don't need to go to San Francisco," he had said, "you can get one in Carmel. You may be suffering from some unsuspected ailment that will carry you to an early grave—"

"Better an early grave than a physical examination—"I search work at a little place called Johns Hopkins, and in no back talk from anyone but Leipzig, also with Frederich his wife. I was pushed into a car and driven to the famous clinic on the hill.

"Your age?" asked Dr. Kocher, when we were settled in his study.

"Twenty-nine—" I answered, but I noticed Dr. Kocher wrote down "forty-nine," and made a memo to verify it in Who's Who.

"I'm not surprised to see you here," he grinned. "Physicians are sending their patients to me for examination because we have all the scientific appliances there are—"

"How about the experts to apply them?" I asked, sassily.

"Ugh!" he grinned. "You can leave me out of it. But Dr. Paul Hartley, Elmer Messner, Ruth Christianson, Kathleen Taylor, Helen Bishop, brought here from the medical centers of the country, have records that may interest you—"

The next thing I knew I was in the X-ray room. Here I learned why bachelors are popular in hospitals. When someone is trying to look at your innards the absence of shirt buttons is a virtue. Gosh, such a funny sensation to see your heart palpitating—trying to beat casually, when it feels like jumping into your throat!

Next I was ushered to the microscope and blood testing room to meet Mrs. Ruth Christianson. There's something hypnotic about Mrs. Christianson. We were chatting pleasantly of life in Carmel, when all at once I noticed a red stream trickling from my ear lobe.

"What's that?" I cried in alarm.

"Blood!"
"Whose blood?"
"Yours—"
"My God—of all the nerve—"

Actually this woman had cut my ear without my feeling it, and was calmly bottling my blood for tests.

"Say—" said I, "if I ever have to have my leg or my head cut off, you get the job. You can tell me bed-time stories and I won't know what's happening—"

Just as we were really getting acquainted Dr. Kocher called and conducted me to Dr. Paul Hartley for an electrocardiograph—a sort of moving picture of the way your heart muscles behave. I half dozed on a couch for ten minutes while the scientist made a movie of my gizzard—I guess it was a movie. If Hollywood ever produces it they'll call it "Heart Beats of a Carmelite."

"You see," explained Dr. Hartley, "after thousands of years of guess work science has made it possible to know the facts. These photographs give your physician information which can be obtained in no other way."

With my vital organs doing their stuff right there before my eyes, I wasn't prepared to deny this. Why, even a Ziegfeld revue couldn't reveal any more! So I said, "I understand you have some swell experts here—"

"Confidentially, the one real expert here is Dr. Kocher—"

"Why—what'd he ever do?"

"Oh, nothing much—only graduated from Stanford, did research work at a little place called Johns Hopkins, and in spirits rose mountain high."

"I'd like to see the rest of this joint—" I said to Mrs. Kathleen Taylor, superintendent.

"O. K.—" said she.

Say, reader, you just ought to see those bed rooms—Spanish carved furniture, draperies, rugs, jeweled baths—you can imagine what the rest was like when I tell you the pictures on the walls are Paul Whitman etchings! Every window has a view that would turn an Easterner into a Carmelite for life.

And wouldn't Fire Chief Leidig rave over the hose nozzles in the hydro-therapy department! The patient stands under a gleaming metal frame. Twenty feet away—to give the operator a head start if the patient turns on him—is the control board. The operator regulates the heat, aims a nozzle built like a brass cannon at the patient's spine, and lets fly. The stream that issues from that nozzle would put out the greatest conflagration in Carmel's history without half trying. If that doesn't cure the sufferer—nothing will. After the shower you relax in a great, porous bath tub—lie in it like a brook trout in a rapids while soothing waters gurgle over you.

"A laboratory should look like this," remarked Mrs. Taylor, opening a door into a sunny room. Elmer Messner was dabbling with test tubes, and powders, and had his stuff spread all over the place. "It may look disorderly," she went on in a loud voice for Messner to hear, "but chemists are like that." Apparently to get even with Messner, this immaculate house-keeper conducted me to the furnace room run by her own engineer, a Mr. Riley, she imported from a hospital in Detroit. The place was so spick and span Mrs. Riley could serve tea in it.

I haven't mentioned the individual baby rooms entirely enclosed in glass—the sun roof—and just such a dining room as you might expect to see in a Pebble Beach mansion. A horrid fear began to rise within me. What sort of a fee would I have to pay for passing a physical examination with credit? Would it bankrupt me?

"H-how much?" I asked the bookkeeper when we returned to the office.

"Ten dollars—" replied Miss Rasmussen, consulting her records.

"Ten dollars—" I gasped, thinking she'd omitted at least two ciphers.

"That's what I said—"

"Say—" said I to Mrs. Taylor, after I'd paid and taken a receipt so they couldn't come back at me—"how much do you charge for those million dollar rooms I was looking at?"

"Including meals, two visits daily from the house physician, and service of the floor nurse—six dollars a day and up—"

"I don't believe it—some people may think you're an honest woman but—"

"Send someone up here in need of rest under observation, or suffering from a nutritional ailment, and I'll prove it to you. Dr. Kocher has a very definite idea about charges. The rich are not taxed to pay the poor man's bill. Rates are the same—then have a visitors' day once a month to let the rubes visit—300% too much, not counting

"I have only one suggestion here from New York see tips—and I'll bet this is the only one that answers that to make to you, young woman," what a real metabolic clinic looks like. This is the first time I ever visited a medical institution that didn't charge

"If you're telling me the truth in my life I ever visited a medical clinic in the history of America."

TOSCANINI and STOKOWSKI in Carmel

"If I had the money I'd take you East to hear Toscanini direct the Philharmonic Orchestra—" said John.

"It wouldn't do any good to go," said Alice, his wife. "Carnegie Hall is sold out two years in advance. I've tried to get seats and I know—but we're going to hear Toscanini just the same."

When John returned from church the following Sunday the lovely strains of Brahms' First Symphony greeted his ears. He stood still, thrilled with joy. Why, it sounded as if they were playing in the next room!

"No one but Toscanini could direct the finale like that!" he exclaimed when the last chord had died away.

"It is Toscanini!" cried Alice.

And it was. That afternoon they heard Stokowski, Josef Hofmann, Schumann-Heink, the Abas Quartette, Gunnar Johannson, and other great artists. A thousand dollars and weeks of travel wouldn't have taken them to all the concerts they heard in one afternoon. And the new Golden Voiced ATWATER KENT RADIO George Webb had installed at less than the cost of a week end in San Francisco, would bring them the world's best music for years to come. Why not make it an ATWATER KENT for Christmas!

NEW SCENIC HIGHWAY CONNECT

Carmel and Pacific Grove brought together within a ten minute distance by the new direct highway which was recently opened, a dinner dance in honor of those instrumental in securing the appropriation for the construction of the road was given Thursday night at Asilomar.

City leaders both from Carmel and Pacific Grove participated in the celebration which was sponsored by the Grove chamber of commerce. The road, less than three miles in length, goes through some of the most scenic territory on the Monterey peninsula.

The road, starting from the top of the Carmel hill adjoining the 17-mile drive entrance, winds its way high above the tall pines. There are two excellent stopping places where one can see a view of Monterey bay. A little further down, Pebble Beach appears in miniature.

At last night's celebration, the opening address was given by Mayor J. P. Pryor of Pacific Grove who welcomed those present. Sheldon Gilbert, chairman of the Grove chamber of commerce road committee, acted as toastmaster.

Among those who gave three-minute talks were: Col. Roger Fitch, retired commandant of the Monterey presidio; Ray De Yoe, of Carmel, who when he was in the assembly was one of those responsible for obtaining the construction of the road; John Jordan, Carmel councilman; Samuel F. B. Morse of the Del Monte Properties Co.; George Gould, Jr., of Salinas; Supervisor A. A. Carruthers; Howard Cozzens, county surveyor; Dr. Frank Hart of Pacific Grove; E. H. Tickle of Carmel Highlands; W. R. Holman of Pacific Grove and Andrew Jacobsen, president of the Grove chamber of commerce.

The affair was in charge of a chamber committee working together with A. C. Jochmus, chamber secretary and others.

Plans for the construction of the new highway were started

WALLS AT MISSION ARE REINFORCED

The walls at the Carmel mission have been straightened to withstand the strain of time, by repairs to the buttresses in the rear of the church. The repairs were started several weeks ago at the suggestion of the Rev. Philip Scher, pastor of the Carmel and Monterey churches.

According to Father Scher, the buttresses had become loose and were dragging the wall with them. The work of reinforcing them has now been completed.

IMPROVEMENTS TO BE MADE ON LODGE

Improvements to cost in the neighborhood of $75,000, which will include the refurbishing and redecorating of the entire first floor of Del Monte lodge, were started this week.

A great part of the work will be under the direction of Francis McComas, noted artist. The architectural changes are being made by Lewis C. Hobart and the mural decorations by Jean Francis McComas. Work will be completed on February 1 but will not interfere with the regular operation of the lodge.

Either paving or surfacing of the road is now being planned by the supervisors. It is hoped that an appropriation will be obtained in next year's budget for paving it.

will be abandoned as the pupils will carry their books into a modern classroom. The modern classroom is in the new Tularcitos grammar school which is to be completed before the end of the month. The structure is costing in the neighborhood of $6,000.

NEW NAME SOUGHT FOR GOLDEN BOUGH THEATRE

Due to a certain clause in the new contract for the lease of the Golden Bough Theater, another name will have to be selected for the local showhouse. Carmel residents, however, will be given the opportunity to choose a fitting name for the theater.

Through arrangements made by the new management of the theater and The Pine Cone, for the best name chosen, a $300 season theater ticket good for two persons every night, including Saturday and Sunday will be awarded. The names will be judged by a group of competent artists and writers, and will be announced later.

The Golden Bough which was taken over by David J. Bolton and the Monterey Peninsula Theater company last week for a long term lease will be devoted exclusively to the presentation of talking moving pictures. The theater will be officially christened with its new name when it is reopened again during the Christmas holidays.

Any resident this side of Monterey can enter the contest. This of course will include residents of the Highlands, the Point, Carmel Valley and Pebble Beach. Each contestant can send in three names. Anyone of these three can be selected as the winning one.

All names should be sent to Contest Editor, the Pine Cone, Carmel, and not to any other individual or company. All contributions will be numbered as they enter and when the judges select the name, the author of the contribution will be unknown. This will avoid any possible favoritism.

Each contribution should be typewritten. The contestant, sending in more than one name, must have each suggestion on a separate piece of paper. All contributions should be sent in on or before midnight of December 15. The winners will be announced in the Pine Cone on Friday, December 19.

This offer is made by David J. Bolton, who is taking over the Golden Bough, in the belief that Carmel residents can select the name for their own theater better than anyone else.

The theater's present name is being retained by Edward Kuster, owner of the showhouse. Contributions can be sent in at once.

CHEST ESSAYS ARE BEING JUDGED

The schools of the Peninsula have been competing in a contest for the Community Chest. All essays were sent in to the Chest office before 5 p. m. last Monday, November 17th. The judges meet this week and the winning essays will be published in the papers just before the Campaign opens. The judges are Col. Fitch, Col. Gibson, Dr. Wetherill, Mrs. William O'Donnell and Miss Charlton Fortune.

THE MORONI OLSEN PLAYERS NEXT WEEK

On Friday and Saturday next, the two nights succeeding Thanksgiving, the well-known Moroni Olsen Players will present at Carmel Playhouse St. John Ervine's famous play, "The Ship," with Janet Young portraying Old Mrs. Thurlow, Moroni Olsen playing John Thurlow and Gorden Nelson in the effective character role of Captain Cornelius, tippling but gentlemanly ex-soldier.

"The Ship," which was played with great success at the Golden Bough in its first season six years ago, with Ellen Van Volkenburg as Old Mrs. Thurlow, and Maurice Browne directing, is one of England's finest plays of this generation, sharing honors with "John Ferguson," also by Ervine. It contains all the elements of entertainment and inspiration that belong to the fine things of the stage. Along with its serious aspect, the age-old conflict between father and son of different temperaments and ambitions, runs the tender humor and wisdom of Old Mrs. Thurlow, the 83 year old grandmother of the boy, and the broader humor of the more youthful members of the cast. As for sheer drama, nothing more powerful can be imagined than the scene between John Thurlow and his aged mother when the news is broken that the "Magnificent" has gone down on her maiden voyage, carrying with her Thurlow's boy, compelled against his will to represent the famous shipbuilder on the great vessel's initial trip.

With the Thanksgiving holiday season on and no pictures showing at the Golden Bough, Edward Kuster, of the Playhouse, urges local playgoers to make their reservations early, as the 250-seat capacity of the local theater will probably be taxed to the utmost by this short engagement of the Moroni Olsen Company. "The Ship" will be played for two nights only.

This is the farewell tour of these players, after nine years of repertory which has given them the reputation of being one of the finest ensemble groups touring this country. Aside from the high merits of their offering, Carmel and the Peninsula at large owe to many of the younger players of the company

TAKANE NAMBU GIVES RARE PROGRAM

By Thomas Vincent Cator
Takane Nambu, the little Japanese soprano, who made her appearance at the Denny-Watrous Gallery last Sunday night, endeared herself to the audience, not only because of the artistic way in which she handles her voice, but also because of the brightness and sparkle of her personality. And with this brightness and sparkle she combines a winsomeness and a sort of shy but unconscious coquetry that is just about as naive and alluring as anything imaginable.

She began her program with a Mozart "Aria," in which she showed considerable skill in the handling of her voice. Later in the evening she sang the "One Fine Day," from Puccini's "Madame Butterfly," and injected into it a sense of stark tragedy, with a realism that it would be impossible for one of any other race to simulate. But it was in the Japanese folksongs that she proved most convincing and attractive. These were some of the most melodically ethereal yet luminous songs that it has ever been our good fortune to hear. They partake of that delightfully complex Oriental tonality which expresses so much without any excessive use of material. There is a vital charm to this which cannot be denied. One song that was felt even though we could not understand the words, was the "Vegetable Song," in which the different escutents of the common garden variety were evidently quarrelling over their respective rights. The audience liked this so much that the little singer did it three times during the evening. And she did the "Cherry Blossom," song and dance twice. Graceful as a little fawn. Mr. Edward Hopkins supplied most of the attractive accompaniments, and Mme. Nambu's husband did a few in the more complex modes.

Mrs. Harry C. James, who recently underwent a serious operation at the Stanford hospital in San Francisco, has been removed to the home of her sister in that city, until such a time as her strength will permit home.

DO NOT DESPISE THEM

It is coming slowly, but surely—the time when Carmel will be prized as a winter home by a vastly greater number of just the kind of folks who like Carmel now. Not the jazzy sort, in search of conventional diversions, but folks with background and an appreciation for the value of leisure. In even greater numbers they will come, bringing with them interest in the arts and individual talents. They will contribute to the village life more than they will take.

I have no patience with the calamity howlers, the pessimists who tremble lest life in Carmel be cheapened by the advent of newcomers. After three years of close observation, I've seen our city advance musically. I've seen it grow in literary importance and artistic standing.

Despite phenomenal growth in population our beach is still unsullied by public bath houses or hot dog stands. It is innocent of pavilions and board walks—and there is less likelihood of them now than ever before in our history.

One doesn't need to be a highbrow to appreciate Carmel. Artisans, clerks, laborers, people from the humbler walks of life visit us and look us over. The shallow pass on to pursue their tinsel existences elsewhere—in Santa Cruz or Southern California. A surprising number gaze upon unspoiled Carmel in amazement and glad surprise. Perhaps they had dreamed of such a place, free from tourists speeding up and down paved residence streets, free from auto camps and carousels fronting the majesty of the sea. On the spot they vow some day to make this village their home.

There are many rare personalities in the ranks—more than any of us dream of. Perhaps even more than poets and painters they absorb the beauty of Carmel. It must strike very deep into their souls, for they retain it. They do not throw it off in the form of poems, pictures, and musical compositions for the market—they do not use it commercially. It lies too close to them. Life in Carmel offers them nothing salable. On the contrary they suffer financial loss to live here—they work for less than they can get elsewhere. Carmel, do not despise your humble worshippers! They, even more than artists poets and writers, truly belong.

HITCHED UP

It has been a long and slow struggle, this linking up of Carmel and Pacific Grove. Because Carmel could never get very enthusiastic over any highway that menaced its solitude, all the work of accomplishment was left to Pacific Grove. Only when a route was planned that left the entrance to our village unchanged and at the top of the hill, did Carmel's objection become a luke-warm support.

The writer recalls—was it eight years ago?—that a committee of business men of the Grove, including Holman, Dr. Hart and Ed Simpson, called upon him, among others here, to urge a connecting highway. To us, it seemed reasonable enough that we have another way of egress from town, a scenic road to add variety to our driving. And we made the canvass of Ocean avenue with the Grove committee, urging the project.

A DEWDROP

Could I but cast the shadows
Of the dawn,
And steal the mountain's image
From the lake and know,
Within the radiant dewdrop's form,
Cohesion's bright perfection,

I would take
Sunlight and deep-drowned shadow,
And these two
Show to you all anew,

Shrunk to a diamond flash
And minute shade,
Within a single drop
Of morning dew
Held on a leaf of clover . . .

Space would fade,
Yielding its simple secret—
Time, dismayed stand still
And rend the sad sweet
Perfumed veils
Of shadowed memory and gleaming hope—
Two phantom worlds made real
Within a leaf-nursed drop . . .

Distillate of time's past
And endless morrow,—
Held in perfection's roudure
Of a timeless now,
Unstained by sorrow . . .

—John Burton.

THE GODS HAD WIDE-SET EYES

The gods, and all the Titans who survived
Had eyes alike:
Wide-set, unfathomable,
And contemptuous—
More than all else, contemptuous!

I remember this, knowing it well for the first time,
While through the still air there drifts tonight
That thin, haunting voice of your flute.
I pull apart the dry leaves of your chaplet.
One by one, they scatter from my hand
In a brown shower of dust,
And the words of your song
Push sullenly against the crumbling walls
Of my heart,
Eager to weave again their magic pattern
Through the thin, haunting warp
Of your flute-tones.

The song begins:
"Here is an evergreen chaplet . . ."
And I know that by and by,
When I am able to grind into the earth with my heel
The brown dust of your offering,
I shall have, for a moment at least,
Contemptuous eyes . . .

Tonight the brown dust
Clings to my cold fingers,
And I could wish my eyes were wide-set
Like a god's!
And most of all
That you had not fathomed their depths!

—Irene Alexander.

The best we got was neutrality. One or two business men were belligerently antagonistic. No one gave us the glad hand of encouragement. A direct road to Pacific Grove merely meant that more business would be done on Lighthouse avenue, and less on Ocean avenue. Nor did our shops listen at all to the argument that Pacific Grove might furnish them additional custom.

Yet time has proved the truth of our contention. We have bettered business conditions with each improvement in transportation between here and the Grove. More and more, Carmel is becoming the shopping center of the peninsula. Our merchants reach out for the business of the neighboring towns—and get it. And our dramatic and musical endeavors are materially aided by the improvement in the highways.

So long as the Carmel shops can offer distinction of merchandise and artistry of selection in their wares, they need have no fear of loss of trade through ease of approach to their doors. While our theaters and concerts provide first class entertainment, they can only benefit by a smooth roadbed from the Grove. And the fact that the pleasure rider may drive one way going and come back over another scenic route, is not going to be any disadvantage to Carmel, either.

COMES THE COMMUNITY CHEST

This year the Community Chest is preparing for greater need of direct relief of personal necessity than ever before. It is felt that general conditions, as well as the short season in the Monterey fisheries, will give plenty of occasion for charitable assistance during the next twelve months. An emergency fund of $4,000 is provided in the budget, to be expended through relief agencies, on the recommendation of the Council of Relief Workers.

The relief agencies, with their budgets, are the Salvation Army, $4,000, and San Carlos Council, $2,500. We are all familiar with the work of the Salvation Army, prompt and efficient in caring for the unfortunate transient, giving meals and shelter and temporary aid. The San Carlos Council is an organization of Catholic men and women who, through their secretary, Mr. Dorney, stand ready to give immediate aid to the needy. During the first six months of 1930, this organization spent $127 for shoes and clothing, $557 for groceries and milk, besides other sums for meals, rent, fuel etc.

The Community Center, at Monterey, budgeted for $4,233, was started as a day nursery for children whose mothers worked in the canneries, but has enlarged its services to cover all the year, and is a center of the social activities of not only the children, but the whole families of the neighborhood. Classes for boys and girls in cooking, sewing, music and other interests are conducted, and a U. C. graduate is in charge, with a good housekeeper assisting in giving the children and their mothers a real home center.

The Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. is budgeted for $2,700. Down-town in Monterey is provided a place where the soldier from the Presidio, or the sailor off the ship in harbor, may find interest and social life of an innocent kind. These army men live and spend their money on the Monterey peninsula, and this is our small service in return.

The Red Cross, budgeted for $1,200, is the great national relief organization. The Boy Scouts, $2,000, and the Girl Scouts, $950, are not considered as charity agencies, but as character building organizations, which are made more democratic in personnel by their inclusion in the Community Chest. Upon the Monterey peninsula are nine troops of Boy Scouts and two troops of Girl Scouts, with three Brownie troops. A salaried field secretary of the Boy Scouts, and a salaried Girl Scout leader are provided for in the budgeting.

While it is true that the greater part of the Community Chest budget is for outside of Carmel, this village must not evade its full share in the responsibility of raising the necessary money. We may not expect to remain unaffected by poverty and its attendant evils, disease and crime, if they become prevalent in our neighboring towns. We are too close at hand, and too much a part of the peninsula to remain insular socially. It is insurance against the evils that result from hunger and cold, when we make our contribution to the Community Chest. In our ability to help, and to our full ability, we must give, knowing that the administration of our liberality is in able hands.

"Perhaps they would have kept it longer if they had known that the sheriff was out of town," said Ellen.

Berthe dropped into the driver's seat and as they drove onward to California and Carmel she remarked:

"Well, all you would have to do here to get a nice car would be to have some man get the sheriff out of town for a few days. The police wouldn't do anything and if it was a car from another state it would be especially easy."

For the second time in a few months, the Literary Digest has lifted to its poetry page verses originally appearing in the Pine Cone. Introducing Marion Klein's "John Masefield," the Digest says, "The Poet Laureate of England will not disdain a tribute from our Far-West, seeing the following in the Carmel Pine Cone, Carmel-by-the-Sea, Calif."

Marion Klein, a frequent contributor to the Pine Cone, is at home in White Bear Lake, Minnesota, but is at present in Southern California, and may be a visitor in Carmel before long. She is only eighteen years of age, and is traveling with her mother. She writes that she has had a wonderful letter from John Masefield himself, who saw her poem in the Pine Cone.

People Talked About

There is one day a year when the World war veteran should be listened to respectfully, and without yawns. Armistice Day is his for reminiscence or for brag. Pacifists must keep out of his way, or stuff ears with cotton batten. When a group of these warriors get together on November 11, and revive the scenes of a dozen years past, there is bound to be conversation.

Also song. Bob Parrott's house in Hatton Fields is not so very close to ours; in fact, they are several blocks apart. "Mademoiselle of Armentieres" wafted into our livingroom quite audibly. "Tipperary" rattled the windows. I knew there was a party because I had been invited, and had regretfully been invited, and had regretfully been compelled to decline participation. They sang:

"The colonel got the croix de guerre,
Parley-voo,
The colonel got the croix de guerre.
Parley-voo,
The colonel got the croix de guerre
And the son of a blank was never there,
Hinky dinky parley-voo."

There were other verses, unprintable. There were doughboy songs and artillery songs. Metz Durham gave some Canadian songs, and Fritz Wurzman some German ones. As I looked from my open window across the pine woods to the hills, it might have been in Lorraine with a bivouac hidden in the woods. A happy outfit, headed tomorrow for a rest camp.

"Over hill, over dale, as we hit the dusty trail—
And those caissons go rolling along—" sang the bunch at Bob Parrott's. I was homesick to be with them. I wanted to tell my best war stories, and sing the songs of my outfit. I wanted an audience.

"There was a guy in Supply Company," I said to my wife, "by the name of Lipsky—Sam Lipsky. He had come from—"

"Yes; you told me that one," she interrupted.

"Never! Never once! Listen. Sam Lipsky was an East Side New Yorker; had been a worker in a sweat shop. We had a song about him—"

"I remember the song."

"Shut up! We used to sing, friendship made at the front lark."

Sam Lipsky he went over the top,
Parley-voo,
Sam Lipsky he went over the top,
Parley-voo,
Sam Lipsky he went over the top,
To open up a tailor shop,
Hinky, dinky, parley-voo.

"Leave the other verse out; it's too vulgar," ordered the wife.

"Well, Sam Lipsky became great pals with Joe Friedman who was in the same company. Friedman was a member of a silk importing firm of New York, and maybe worth a couple of million dollars. Now Friedman, for all his connections, wasn't in it for intelligence with Sam Lipsky, and all during the war played second fiddle to the East Side sweatshop worker.

"They were buddies. They pup-tented together, got on the same details and when Sam drove the ammunition cart Joe was his helper. We all felt what a wonderful thing it was for Sam to have made such a friendship, for after the war was over, Joe could lift him out of the squalid East Side, and put his financially on his feet for life."

"Wasn't it Sam Lipsky who—?"

"Don't interrupt. Yes, it was Sam who answered the colonel so patly when the colonel, at inspection, called attention to a missing blouse button. 'Lost in action, sir,' snapped Sam, saluting. And as that was the proper excuse for losing anything from a rolling-kitchen to a battery of seventy-fives, the colonel had to grin. And it was Sam who got Major Alexander's goat at the division review after the Armistice. The general, as he passed down the lines, stopped occasionally to speak a sentinel phrase to some man in the ranks. To Sam he said, 'Where are you from?'

"'East Side, New York, sir,' Sam responded.

"Well, young man, when you get back home, you can tell your friends that you were in a division which never asked to be relieved," said Gen. Alexander, proudly.

"We didn't know whom to ask, sir," Sam agreed. Which held General Alexander for a while.

"Well, Sam and Joe both came through the war without a scratch. They got back in one of the doors unlocked and New York together, and that had driven about a bit for a

"Our car has just been stolen at such and such an address," said Miss Berthe Kleinschmidt.

"Very sorry," drawled the police, "but we can do nothing for you."

"What do you mean?" demanded Berthe, "now is the time to act, as it was only taken about five or ten minutes ago."

"Sorry, madam," came the answer, "the sheriff has forbidden us to act in cases of stolen cars." And then they added as an afterthought, "You might call up the sheriff."

So the sheriff was duly called and they were informed that he was out. The police were again consulted and informed that as they were driving to California it was a bit embarrassing to be without a car.

"Besides," said Berthe, "I happen to have an Oregon license."

"Oh in that case," replied the police, "come down to the station and we may be able to do something for you."

After the time consumed for the telephone calls to various authorities, the Kleinschmidts again went forth into the drenching Oregon rain to discover that their car had been returned and parked just a few spaces away from where they had left it. Someone had found them through the war without a scratch. They got back in one of the doors unlocked and New York together, and that had driven about a bit for a

A FORD runs up the hills without half trying—easier than the big cars, and on far less gas and tire expense.

A FORD is easy to handle—fast as the wind—yet stops almost instantly when four-wheel brakes are applied. Turns in half the space of a larger car.

To fully appreciate the magnificent vistas of Pebble Beach and Monterey Bay on the new Carmel-Pacific Grove Highway see them from a FORD it's like looking down upon the Peninsula from the clouds.

The Road to Holman's

Crash! With a squealing of brakes the car came to a stop. A middle-aged man leaped out and ran forward.

"My God!" he exclaimed in a frightened whisper, as he extricated a child from the tangle of a crushed bicycle.

"Boo—hoo—oh—oh!" screamed the youngster.

White with anxiety the man examined the little fellow's body with the expertness of a physician. "Ah—" he breathed in relief— "no bones broken—no cuts or bruises—more scared than hurt I guess—"

The car was perched on the highest point of the new Carmel-Pacific Grove Highway. The magnificent view had tempted Dr. Moody to glance up from the wheel a second—and in that second the accident had happened.

"Where do you live, my little man?" he inquired, as he placed the boy in the car beside him.

"Boo—hoo—I—I want to go to Holman's—"

Though the physician repeated the question again and again the answer was always the same. The sobs increased in intensity. There was nothing to do but drive to the great department store.

"Is this your boy, Mr. Holman?" asked Dr. Moody when they had entered the store.

"I only wish he were—" said the proprietor.

The little fellow had stopped crying the moment they had headed for Holman's. Now he held up a tattered purse. "I got three dollars an' seventeen cents!" he boasted. "I saved it all up to buy mother's birthday present—"

"What's your name?"

"I wanna buy mother's birthday present—" The lips began to pucker.

Dr. Moody reflected that here was a person who refused to be deflected from his purpose even to answer a question. To avoid another crying fit he wisely submitted, "Gimme that!" said the boy, pointing to a work-box topped by a gorgeous bow of silk—"an' that—" indicating a soft pillow cover portraying Cupid shooting with bow and arrow. These came to $2.69. "I want chewing gum, apples an' nuts—" Wisely the saleslady omitted the chewing gum.

"Now young man, please tell me your name—"

"Teddy—" murmured two red lips sticky with an all-day-sucker the good doctor had placed between them.

"Teddy what?"

"Teddy Forbes. I live at North Camion Real—"

Teddy was full of information now, but Dr. Moody did not wait to hear more. A call to Carmel brought an anxious mother to the phone.

"Is Teddy safe?"

"Yes, Mrs. Forbes, not only safe but well and happy—I'll drive him right home to you—"

Again the Carmel-Pacific Grove highway was traversed. This time the driver did not glance up but attended closely to driving. Inside of ten minutes he pulled up at Teddy's door. It was a happy reunion that took place inside the little house. Between smiles and tears Mrs. Forbes listened to the tale of her child's adventures, and opened her birthday gifts. There was a knock at the door. Teddy ran to open it.

"From Holman's!" said the delivery man, wheeling a shiny object into the room.

"Oh goodie!" cried Teddy, leaping into the saddle of a beautiful new bicycle equipped with all the latest fixings. "Thanks, Dr. Moody!" he remembered to say in the midst of his excitement.

"After this," said Mrs. Forbes, turning to Teddy's new friend, "whenever anyone is reported missing, I'm not going to call the police—"

"Who are you going to call?" asked Dr. Moody.

"HOLMAN'S!"

Moral: A drive over the new highway to the big department store will convince you that
